

Dear Julius,

I was told just now that the Weirs have decided to keep the studio, and that Weir's daughter, also a painter, is to occupy it. I wish I could tell you how sorry I am about it - I was so happy in the thought of having you as a neighbour. In the meanwhile I shall be asking everybody about studios - we may be able to find something just as good.

I know that you have much to say about Washington and I want to hear every word. I, too, have a grand deal to tell you about the Near East. One thing

I am certain of it this; The great was enhanced human consciousness
but not human justice.

And may God bless you always

Ever yours

Hubert
